THE BARD

You carry songs older than anyone can remember. You have wandered every muddy road in the Wood and learned that a good story buys more than a sword ever could.

NAME

Pick a name:

Noble-born: Aldric, Severn, Rosmund, Cressida / Wulfrey, Pelham, Isolde, Merewyn

Common Folk: Smyde, Dapper, Brindle, Leechy / Tam, Rowse, Nance, Gwenny

Itinerant: Wick, Fallow, Crumble, Stave / Prill, Sorrow, Jestry, Hobbin

Church Choir: Constant, Devyn, Praise, Laudate / Hymnal, Wren, Vesper, Cantor

LOOK

Pick one from each row:

Heritage: noble blood who chose the road | common-born wanderer | choir-trained voice | church dropout turned storyteller | ask the table

Age: young and full of borrowed tales | seasoned traveler with original ones | grizzled veteran of every tavern in the Wood

Eyes: bright and reading the room | warm but always calculating distance | sad in repose, electric when performing

Build: wiry and light on their feet | soft and commanding | lean with a traveler's endurance

Clothing: extravagant rags patched with fine fabric | simple coat with hidden pockets | performer's finery that's seen better roads

Signature: a lute slung across the back | a voice that carries without trying | a joke that arrives exactly when needed

BACKGROUND

Pick one.

BARDIC GUILD DELEGATE

You carry the seal of the Guild and the reputation that comes with it. When you invoke the Guild's name in a place where its influence is known, take +1 forward to Parley.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you has heard one of my songs before we met?
- Which of you is suspicious of what the Guild wants from me?
- Which of you asked me to remember something — a name, a face, a place?
- Which of you I wouldn't mind writing a song about?

SURVIVOR OF THE WOOD

You were lost in Dolmenwood for a season and came back changed. Your songs carry something true. When you perform a story about the Wood — its creatures, its roads, its strangeness — take +1 forward and the GM must answer one honest question about what you've described.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you found me on the road after I came back?
- Which of you can hear something different in my music?
- Which of you has asked me what happened in there, and gotten no real answer?
- Which of you believes I left something behind?

NOTORIOUS LIAR

You have told so many stories that the truth and the invention are genuinely interchangeable. When you tell a plausible lie with conviction, the GM must treat it as credible until evidence surfaces.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you caught me in a lie and chose not to call it out?
- Which of you still doesn't know what's true about me?
- Which of you I've told the most honest things to, by accident?
- Which of you trusts me anyway?

ROAD PREACHER

You sing to the downtrodden and the forgotten. When you perform for the poor, the sick, or the outcast, you may ask the GM one question about what they need. The GM answers honestly.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you has seen me give my last coin away?
- Which of you thinks I'm naive?
- Which of you have I helped when they didn't expect it?
- Which of you carries something I sang about?

STARTING MOVES

COUNTER-CHARM

When someone uses magic, enchantment, or supernatural persuasion against you or an ally nearby, roll +CHA. On a 10+, the effect is negated or reversed. On a 7-9, the effect is reduced — choose one: it's delayed, it only affects you, or it costs something small.

SILVER TONGUE

When you Parley using a story, song, flattery, or clever misdirection instead of threats or bribes, roll +CHA. On a 10+, they do what you want and don't feel manipulated. On a 7-9, they do it, but they want something small in return.

FOLKLORE

When you hear about a creature, location, or figure from the Wood's history, you may ask the GM one honest question. You've heard this story before — somewhere, from someone.

BALLAD OF THE ROAD

When you make camp and perform for the group, each ally who listens heals 1d4 HP and clears one negative condition.

CHARM OF MISDIRECTION

When you distract a crowd, a guard, or a creature with performance, roll +CHA. On a 10+, all of them are distracted for as long as you keep performing plus one action after. On a 7-9, half of them are; choose which ones.

READ THE ROOM

When you enter a new social space, ask the GM: who is in charge here, who resents them, and what does this room want right now? The GM answers all three honestly.

ADVANCES

- Enchanting Refrain: Once per scene, when you sing or play, one target is charmed and follows a simple suggestion as if they had agreed to it.
- Stolen Lore: When you decipher a script, inscription, or coded message, take +1 forward to using what you learn.
- Voice of Command: When you shout a single direct order in combat, one enemy hesitates — they cannot attack for one round unless the order is disobeyed.
- Fast Friends: When you meet someone new, you may ask the GM: what would make this person trust me? The GM answers honestly.
- The Song Remembers: Once per session, recall a specific piece of lore, name, or rumour that no one else could know — you heard it somewhere on the road.
- Improved Stat: Increase one of your stats by +1, to a max of +2.
- Superior Stat (Requires: Improved Stat, at least one other advance): Increase one of your stats by +1, to a max of +3.

DRIVES

- Collect a song no one else carries.
- Talk your way into somewhere you were never meant to be.
- Be remembered by someone who had no reason to remember you.
- Learn the truth behind a story you've been telling wrong.

NAME

Pick a name:

Church-Raised: Signis, Clewyd, Pastery, Faxis / Lillibeth, Sedge, Keye, Gondyw

Noble Devotee: Aldwyn, Harbert, Constance, Marigold / Osmund, Percival, Thurstan, Elspeth

Reformed Sinner: Cob, Ratch, Gallow, Mire / Bess, Gallow, Scrat, Thornly

Convert from Far Away: Valko, Dreyn, Caius, Arnulf / Marta, Sela, Hilde, Brona

LOOK

Pick one from each row:

Heritage: raised in the Cathedral | converted after witnessing a miracle | born into a minor religious house | arrived at the Church via a dark road | ask the table

Age: young acolyte still finding their conviction | tested veteran of the undead roads | elder cleric who has buried too many

Eyes: steady and measuring | burning with certainty | tired but unyielding

Build: lean under heavy armour | broad-shouldered and immovable | slight but standing firm

Clothing: gleaming chainmail over Church vestments | battered plate with holy symbols scratched in | simple habit with hidden armour beneath

Signature: a raised holy symbol held forward | prayers murmured under every breath | a shield never put down

BACKGROUND

Pick one.

ORDER OF ST SIGNIS — LICHWARD

You are trained to hunt the walking dead and protect the graves of the faithful. When you attack undead, take +1 forward. Your attacks harm undead that can only be harmed by magical or silver weapons, even without such weapons.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you has watched me destroy something that couldn't be killed by ordinary means?
- Which of you is unsettled by how calm I am around the dead?
- Which of you has asked me to say words over someone we lost?
- Which of you worries I'm too focused on death to notice the living?

ORDER OF ST SEDGE — DEFENDER

You are trained to protect Church lands and the innocent within them. When you Defend a person, settlement, or sacred place, hold +1 Readiness. When you lay hands on a wounded character, you may heal up to 1 HP per Level, once per day.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you have I stood between and something dangerous?
- Which of you doesn't think they need protecting?
- Which of you has seen me take a wound I should have avoided?
- Which of you reminds me of someone I failed to protect?

SEMINARY-TRAINED

You studied at the Seminary of 100 Martyrs. You know the Church's doctrine, its politics, and its secrets. When you Spout Lore about the Church, its saints, or religious history, take +1 forward.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you knows my reputation from my seminary days?
- Which of you has asked me something the Church would prefer I not answer?
- Which of you thinks I'm too bound by doctrine?
- Which of you has seen me act against my orders for the right reasons?

WANDERING CONVERT

You came to the faith late, through experience rather than doctrine. Your belief is harder-won and fiercer. When you act on your faith in a moment of genuine danger — without armour, without backup, without certainty — take +1 forward.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you knows what I was before the Church found me?
- Which of you has challenged my faith and been surprised by what I said?
- Which of you I would have robbed or wronged in my old life?
- Which of you believes in something different, and hasn't told me yet?

STARTING MOVES

TURN THE UNDEAD

When you present your holy symbol and invoke the One True God against the undead, roll +WIS. On a 10+, 2d4 undead flee or are stunned. On a 7-9, 1d4 undead are affected but choose one: they're only delayed, they turn on you when the effect ends, or you lose hold of your symbol.

HOLY MAGIC

Beginning at Level 2, you may pray for spells each day. You know prayers appropriate to your Order and your experience. Losing faith or acting against Church tenets removes this ability until you atone.

ARMOUR OF CONVICTION

When you have visibly prepared — armour on, symbol ready, allies gathered — take +1 armour (in addition to your worn armour).

LITURGIC

You speak Liturgic, the scriptural tongue. When you invoke Church authority in writing, ritual, or formal address, those who recognise it must take you seriously.

PURGE THE DARK

When you act directly against the undead, the Drune, or malign fairy magic, your attacks count as magical. You take no penalty from weapons or armour that would normally restrict the faithful.

TENETS OF THE CHURCH

You are sworn to Evangelism, Hierarchy, Monotheism, and the Sanctity of Life. When you act decisively in line with these tenets in a difficult moment — at real cost to yourself — mark XP.

ADVANCES

- Writ of Determination: The Church grants you formal freedom to act independently. When you invoke this authority, even superiors must pause and listen.
- Chain-Break: When you Defy Danger against supernatural fear, take +1 forward. You have faced worse.
- Holy Ground: When you consecrate a space with prayer and ritual (takes one turn), undead cannot enter it and chaotic magic is weakened within it.
- Exorcism: When you lay hands on a possessed or supernaturally afflicted creature and pray for its release, roll +WIS. On a 10+, the affliction is expelled. On a 7-9, it's weakened and you choose one: it harms you, it takes root nearby, or the creature is left dangerously unstable.
- Rally the Flock: When you call out to allies in battle, they clear Fear and take +1 forward to their next action.
- Improved Stat: Increase one of your stats by +1, to a max of +2.
- Superior Stat (Requires: Improved Stat, at least one other advance): Increase one of your stats by +1, to a max of +3.

DRIVES

- Drive back something dark that no one else could face.
- Bring one lost soul into the faith — not by force, but by example.
- Uphold a Church tenet when it costs you something real.
- Find and put to rest something that shouldn't still be walking.

THE ENCHANTER

You were touched by Fairy and didn't come back the same. The glamours live in your hands now. You're still human — mostly — but you dream in Sylvan and sometimes the trees answer back.

NAME

Pick a name:

Fairy-Marked: Silvander, Elwick, Gloriel, Hazel-Thorn / Merrith, Duskfall, Lumi, Wren-Far

Once-Ordinary: Tibbs, Moll, Derry, Crispin / Gwenda, Flint, Patch, Nell

Scholar of Fairy: Elynne, Caelus, Rosamond, Veth / Aldric, Fennick, Seren, Quill

Changed by Loss: Pale, Hush, Ashen, Wandersong / Emre, Dusk, Still, Fallow

LOOK

Pick one from each row:

Heritage: stolen by fairies as a child and returned | lost in Fairy for years before finding the way back | born of mixed elfish ancestry, just far enough removed | found a fairy rune carved into their skin one morning | ask the table

Age: looks young but moves with old knowledge | ageless in an unsettling way | ordinary except for the way the light catches them

Eyes: one shade more vivid than they should be | briefly luminous when casting | always slightly focused on something not quite present

Build: slight and unhurried | ordinary until they move | graceful in a way that didn't come from training

Clothing: practical traveler's clothes with strange embroidery | robes with runes stitched at the cuffs | ordinary garb that somehow never tears or muddies

Signature: glamours that leak at the edges | a faint scent of wildflowers or ozone | a voice that echoes slightly when they speak of Fairy

BACKGROUND

Pick one.

STOLEN CHILD, RETURNED

You were taken by a fairy noble as a child and released — or escaped — years later. You know the courtesy of their courts and the price of their gifts. When you treat with a fairy creature using proper etiquette, take +1 forward.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you noticed that I sometimes forget what year it is?
- Which of you has asked me what happened in Fairy — and gotten the real answer?
- Which of you is wary of me because of what I might still owe?
- Which of you treats me as fully human, no questions asked?

RUNE SCHOLAR

You sought out fairy magic deliberately, trading service or secrets to earn your first runes. When you study a fairy rune, location, or enchantment, you may ask the GM one question about its nature or purpose. The GM answers honestly.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you is uncomfortable with how deliberately I pursued this?
- Which of you has asked to see my runes and I showed them?
- Which of you knows what I traded for my first glamour?
- Which of you I would trust with a fairy secret I haven't told anyone else?

MIXED BLOOD, DISTANT

Your fairy ancestry is far enough removed that no one sees it — except in what you can do. You pass entirely as ordinary. When you conceal your abilities and act as an unremarkable traveler, take +1 forward to Defy Danger against social detection.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you figured out what I am before I told anyone?
- Which of you has helped me keep it quiet?
- Which of you sees me as more fairy than I am?
- Which of you I trust most with the truth?

MARKED WITHOUT WARNING

You woke one morning with a rune carved faintly into your skin. No explanation, no memory, no context — just power and a debt you can't name. When you act on instinct with a glamour, without stopping to think, take +1 forward.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you was with me when I first used it?
- Which of you is worried the debt will come due?
- Which of you has tried to read the mark and told me what they found?
- Which of you I fear will be affected when I finally owe up?

STARTING MOVES

GLAMOURS

You possess minor magical talents called glamours. At Level 1, you know one glamour selected randomly with the GM. Glamours are tricks of fairy magic — illusions, beguilements, vanishings, small transformations. When you use a glamour, roll +CHA. On a 10+, it works as intended. On a 7-9, it works but choose one: it's visible to those who know what to look for, it costs something small, or it affects more than intended.

FAIRY RUNE

You know one rune of lesser magnitude, granted by a fairy noble (or marked on you unbidden). When you invoke the rune, roll +INT. The GM determines the magnitude of effect. Acquiring new runes requires winning the favour of fairy nobility or surviving events that bring them to you.

DETECT MAGIC

When you concentrate on a person, object, or location, you sense the presence and approximate nature of fairy or arcane magic. No roll required.

SYLVAN TONGUE

You speak Sylvan, the language of Fairy. You may address fairy creatures, read fairy inscriptions, and navigate their courts without the ignorance that costs mortals so dearly.

OTHERWORLDLY GUISE

When you draw on your fairy connection to appear more fey — slightly luminous, eerily still, otherworldly — roll +CHA. On a 10+, mortals treat you with cautious deference. Fairies assess you as a peer. On a 7-9, choose one: mortals are suspicious, or fairies demand proof of your lineage.

BEGUILE

When you catch a creature's eye and hold it, roll +CHA. On a 10+, they are beguiled — they can't act against you for one scene and believe, vaguely, that you mean them well. On a 7-9, they are distracted and uncertain.

ADVANCES

- New Glamour: Learn an additional glamour, rolled randomly with the GM.
- Greater Rune: A fairy noble grants you a rune of greater magnitude, for a favour named or pending.
- Fairy Road: You know a fairy road in Dolmenwood. Once per session, you may use it to travel quickly or enter a fairy realm, though the GM sets the terms.
- Shimmering Ward: When you weave a glamour around a space or person, mundane intruders cannot perceive it unless they actively search and roll to do so.
- Silver Tongue of Fairy: When you negotiate with a fairy creature using the proper forms of courtesy, the GM must offer you at least one real option rather than dismissal.
- Improved Stat: Increase one of your stats by +1, to a max of +2.
- Superior Stat (Requires: Improved Stat, at least one other advance): Increase one of your stats by +1, to a max of +3.

DRIVES

- Learn the name of the fairy noble who marked or changed you.
- Gain a rune no mortal has held before.
- Help another mortal survive an encounter with Fairy that would have destroyed them.
- Discover whether you can ever fully return to what you were.

House Guard: Griffon, Walden, Sternby, Ulric / Maren, Hadda, Tove, Breck

Mercenary: Cob, Knuck, Tallow, Gravel / Lass, Scar, Brine, Pell

Veteran from Far Away: Dagon, Arno, Kas, Thord / Vanka, Helde, Mira, Siv

LOOK

Pick one from each row:

Heritage: ducal garrison soldier | house guard sworn to a minor noble | freelance mercenary | veteran of a war beyond Dolmenwood's borders | ask the table

Age: young and proving something | prime and dangerous | seasoned and still standing

Eyes: flat and professionally calm | watchful and never still | knowing and tired

Build: thick and armoured | rangy and fast | scarred and hard under the weight

Clothing: practical armour dented from use | military surplus over a padded coat | plate mail maintained like a religion

Signature: a weapon always within reach | a fighting stance even when relaxed | scars placed exactly where experience put them

BACKGROUND

Pick one.

DUCAL SOLDIER

You served in Castle Brackenwold's garrison. You know formations, orders, and when to stop asking questions. When you fight alongside an ally who is following a clear plan, you both take +1 forward.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you knows my rank — or the rank I used to hold?
- Which of you fought beside me before we ended up here?
- Which of you has asked why I left the garrison?
- Which of you I would still take an order from?

HOUSE GUARD

You swore to a noble house and did the work that kept them breathing. You know what it costs to protect the powerful. When you Defend someone weaker than the threat they're facing, hold +1 Readiness.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you knows the house I served — and what happened to them?
- Which of you has needed protecting in a way that reminded me of my old work?
- Which of you thinks loyalty to a house is a weakness?
- Which of you would I put first in a fight, before any other consideration?

MERCENARY

You sold your sword and took what came with it. No one owns your allegiance and you prefer it that way. When you negotiate payment before taking a dangerous job, take +1 forward to the first roll you make doing it.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you hired me — or knew someone who did?
- Which of you thinks I can be bought off the job?
- Which of you have I refused a job from, and why?
- Which of you I'd work for free, though I haven't said so?

WAR VETERAN

You came back from a war no one here remembers. You carry techniques from that place. When you Defy Danger in active combat — under fire, in chaos, outnumbered — take +1 forward.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you knows what war I served in?
- Which of you has asked me about it and I answered honestly?
- Which of you saw me freeze once, for just a moment?
- Which of you I wouldn't want to see fight the same way I do?

STARTING MOVES

COMBAT TALENT

At Level 1, choose or roll one Combat Talent:

1. Battle Rage: When you enter a berserk fury, take +2 to Attack and Damage but -4 to armour and you cannot flee until combat ends.
2. Cleave: When you strike a killing blow in melee with multiple foes nearby, make an immediate second attack at -2.
3. Defender: While you are engaged in melee, enemies attacking others nearby are at -2.
4. Slayer: Choose a type of creature. Against them, your attacks deal +1d4 extra damage.

(Gain additional Combat Talents at Levels 6, 10, and 14.)

FRONT LINE

When you put yourself between the enemy and a weaker ally, you draw their attention — enemies attack you first unless they have a specific reason not to.

WEAPON MASTERY

You are proficient with any weapon you can lift. When you fight with a weapon suited to the situation — right range, right weight, right moment — take +1 forward.

ENDURE

When you take damage that would take you to 0 HP, roll +CON. On a 10+, you stay conscious with 1 HP. On a 7-9, you stay conscious but the GM chooses one complication: you're exposed, disarmed, or staggered.

HOLD GROUND

When you stand your ground and refuse to retreat, enemies must test your resolve — roll +STR. On a 10+, they hesitate and you choose where the engagement happens. On a 7-9, they press but you take +1 armour against the first hit.

ARSENAL

You begin each session with one weapon option the fiction supports — from your pack, a contact, or a stash you made earlier.

ADVANCES

- New Combat Talent: Gain an additional Combat Talent from the list.
- Momentum: When you deal damage that kills an enemy, take +1 forward.
- Iron Constitution: Your HP maximum increases by 4.
- Tactical Eye: When you assess an enemy's fighting style for a moment before engaging, ask the GM one question about their weaknesses. The GM answers honestly.
- Press the Advantage: When an ally creates an opening — by flanking, distracting, or wounding an enemy — you may move in and attack without provoking a response.
- Improved Stat: Increase one of your stats by +1, to a max of +2.
- Superior Stat (Requires: Improved Stat, at least one other advance): Increase one of your stats by +1, to a max of +3.

DRIVES

- End a fight cleanly before it spreads.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you came to me with something that needed treating?
- Which of you has asked about my monastery and gotten a sad answer?
- Which of you thinks I'm wasted outside the Church walls?
- Which of you have I taught something small but useful?

WANDERING PREACHER

You took to the roads before most friars do. You know what people in small hamlets and lonely crossroads actually need — and it's rarely doctrine. When you offer comfort, counsel, or practical aid to a commoner, they tell you something true about the place you're in.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you I met on the road when we were both going nowhere?
- Which of you thinks the Church should do more of what I do and less of what it does?
- Which of you has asked for my blessing and gotten it without judgement?
- Which of you has come to me with something too heavy to carry alone?

PLAGUE FRIAR

You served in a village or district during sickness and came out the other side. You are not afraid of infection, death, or bodies. When you Defy Danger against disease, poison, or the aftermath of violence, take +1 forward.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you knows what I saw in that village?
- Which of you I helped when they were sick or hurt and they almost didn't make it?
- Which of you is quietly relieved that I am calm about these things?
- Which of you have I convinced not to give up?

SAINT'S DEVOTEE

You are devoted to a specific saint — their area of patronage shapes your prayers and your path. When you invoke your saint in a situation relevant to their domain, take +1 forward and the GM must tell you something useful.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you has heard of my saint?
- Which of you have I brought the saint's protection to, whether they asked for it or not?
- Which of you thinks my devotion is superstition?
- Which of you has seen something that made them reconsider?

STARTING MOVES

HERBALISM

When you forage for herbs, fungi, or healing plants in wild terrain, roll +WIS. On a 10+, you find everything you need and learn one additional useful property of something growing nearby. On a 7-9, you find what you need but it takes longer or you expose yourself to something unpleasant.

HOLY MAGIC

Beginning at Level 1, you may pray for spells each day, even without formal ordination. Your prayers are simple but sincere. The saints hear you.

ARMOUR OF FAITH

The One True God shields those who do the work. You gain a bonus to Armour Class equal to your Level divided by 3 (round up), even without armour.

CULINARY IMPLEMENTS

In a pinch, you can fight with a frying pan, ham shank, or cured sausage as a melee weapon (d4 damage). No one sees it coming. You take +1 forward the first time you do this in a scene.

TEND THE WOUNDED

When you have supplies and spend a moment of calm, you may heal 1d6 HP to one creature. In the field, this requires herbs or bandages. At camp, it heals to full.

TURN THE UNDEAD

When you present your holy symbol and call on your saint against the undead, roll +WIS. On a 10+, 1d4 undead flee or are stunned. On a 7-9, they hesitate — the GM chooses one complication.

ADVANCES

- Greater Herbalism: When you prepare a specific treatment in advance (a poultice, a draught, a cure), it takes effect instantly when applied rather than requiring a roll.
- Serene Under Pressure: When a situation becomes violent or frightening and you remain calm, take +1 forward to your next action.
- The Saint Provides: Once per session, find exactly what you need — a specific herb, a small tool, a coin — in a pocket you didn't know you'd packed.
- Preaching Voice: When you speak truth plainly and without ornament to a crowd or group, they listen. No roll required for them to hear you out; they may still disagree.
- Healing Touch: When you lay hands on someone who is dying or has been brought to 0 HP, they stabilise automatically. No roll, no conditions.
- Improved Stat: Increase one of your stats by +1, to a max of +2.
- Superior Stat (Requires: Improved Stat, at least one other advance): Increase one of your stats by +1, to a max of +3.

DRIVES

- Tend to someone who had no reason to expect help.
- Speak plainly to someone powerful about what they are doing wrong.
- Find and use a plant no one else would have known to look for.
- Carry a burden for someone who can't carry it alone.

Forest-Born: Breck, Tanner, Finch, Holler / Wren, Marsh, Spruce, Bramble

Game Warden: Aldric, Fenn, Selwyn, Grum / Eadith, Harrow, Mira, Lowe

Trapper: Snare, Cob, Ketch, Larch / Ivy, Birch, Dell, Hawse

Woodsman: Vance, Keld, Morrow, Burr / Asca, Teva, Kade, Fern

LOOK

Pick one from each row:

Heritage: born in a forest settlement and never left | game warden who knows these particular woods | trapper and tracker turned adventurer | woodsman who survived something most wouldn't | ask the table

Age: young and learning to read things quickly | in their prime and at ease in the dark | weathered but sure of every step

Eyes: always scanning from habit | patient and distant | quick and returning

Build: lean and light | wiry with trail endurance | broad-shouldered and silent

Clothing: camouflage leathers layered practically | hunter's coat with knife loops and pockets | muted colours chosen for the terrain

Signature: a bonded animal companion nearby | a longbow never far from the hand | the particular stillness of someone who knows when to stop moving

BACKGROUND

Pick one.

BONDED HUNTER

You have formed a genuine bond with an animal companion — a hound, a hawk, a badger, a pony, or something else the Wood offers. The bond is mutual and real. When you and your companion act together, take +1 forward.

Your companion: describe them and give them a name. They have 3 HP, one useful quality (fast, fierce, stealthy, aware), and they communicate needs clearly. When your companion is harmed, mark XP.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you has won my companion's trust?
- Which of you was unsettled by my companion at first?
- Which of you has helped care for them when I couldn't?
- Which of you my companion watches with particular attention?

GAME WARDEN

You patrol a specific stretch of the Wood — you know its trails, its creatures, its moods. When you enter an area you know or one that resembles it, ask the GM: what creature in this area is most dangerous right now? The GM answers honestly.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you wandered into my territory before we met properly?
- Which of you knows the Wood well enough that I respect their experience?
- Which of you have I warned about something they ignored?
- Which of you I've decided to trust with places I don't usually share?

SURVIVOR OF THE DEEP WOOD

You went too far in, once — farther than the trails reach — and you came back. You carry what that taught you. When you navigate or survive in genuinely wild, trackless terrain, take +1 forward.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you found me on the edge of the Wood when I returned?
- Which of you has asked what I saw out there?
- Which of you can tell, just by looking at me, that I came back different?
- Which of you I'm glad wasn't with me?

CREATURE SCHOLAR

You have spent more time studying what lives in the Wood than fighting it, when possible. When you observe a creature before engaging — taking even a moment to read its behaviour — ask the GM one question about it. The GM answers honestly.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you has let me talk them out of a fight with something that didn't need to die?
- Which of you has asked what something was — and gotten a real answer?
- Which of you was surprised I knew so much?
- Which of you has seen me wrong about a creature in a costly way?

STARTING MOVES

ALERTNESS

You are never surprised. When something attacks from ambush or moves without warning, you act first regardless.

TRACK

When you study signs of passage — footprints, broken branches, disturbed earth — roll +WIS. On a 10+, you follow the trail without losing it and learn one thing about what left it. On a 7-9, you follow it but the GM chooses one: it took longer than expected, it led somewhere dangerous, or you're noticed.

WAYFINDING

When your group becomes lost, there is a 4-in-6 chance you find the way again without a roll. On a failure, you can still roll +WIS.

MISSILE MASTERY

When you attack with a bow or sling, deal +1 damage. At range, you take no penalty for difficult terrain or partial cover.

SURVIVAL

You can forage, make shelter, find water, and keep a group alive in the Wood without a roll under normal conditions. In unusual or hostile conditions, take +1 forward.

READ THE CREATURE

When a creature behaves strangely — hesitates, circles, won't attack — you understand why. Ask the GM one question about what it wants or fears. The GM answers honestly.

ADVANCES

- Second Animal Companion: Bond with a second animal. Your first companion grows in loyalty — gain a second quality for them.
- Deadly Aim: Once per combat, before you shoot, declare you are aiming. Your attack deals maximum damage.
- Quarry: Declare one creature as quarry. Against it, all your rolls take +1 forward until it is dead or fled.
- Forest Ghost: When you move through wild terrain without alerting others, take +1 forward. You may hide in plain sight of creatures whose attention you haven't drawn.
- First Aid, Field-Dressed: When you treat a wound in the field with a knife and what the Wood provides, heal 1d8 HP to one character.
- Improved Stat: Increase one of your stats by +1, to a max of +2.
- Superior Stat (Requires: Improved Stat, at least one other advance): Increase one of your stats by +1, to a max of +3.

DRIVES

- Keep your companion alive when everything is trying to kill them.
- Lead someone through the Wood who couldn't have survived it alone.
- Find and face the creature that has been following your group.
- Learn one new truth about something that lives in the deep Wood.

LOOK

Pick one from each row:

Heritage: knighted for service to a noble house | born into a minor noble family and trained from birth | earned the title through unusual deeds | errant knight far from their liege's lands | ask the table

Age: young and proving their worth | in their prime and serving with confidence | experienced knight with a complicated history

Eyes: direct and formal | searching for the honourable path | calm with the ease of authority

Build: armoured and imposing | lean and precise on horseback | broad and immovable on foot

Clothing: polished plate with heraldic crest | well-maintained mail with pennant colours | dented armour repaired with care and principle

Signature: a coat of arms displayed openly | a warhorse whose care comes first | formal address even in informal situations

BACKGROUND

Pick one.

HOUSE HARROWMOOR — STEADFAST MILITANT

Lady Theatrice Harrowmoor's knights are known for discipline and resolve. You hold the line. When you Defend in the name of your house, take +1 Readiness and your allies take +1 forward on their first actions while you hold.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you knows the reputation of House Harrowmoor?
- Which of you thinks my discipline is too rigid?
- Which of you have I protected without making a show of it?
- Which of you would I invite to meet my liege?

HOUSE GUILLEFER — DREAMY AND ALOOF

House Guillefer's knights are known for their distance and their patience. Rulership rotates; your loyalty is to the house, not one lord. When you take the long view — declining to act rashly, waiting, observing — take +1 forward to the action you eventually choose.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you has been frustrated by my stillness?
- Which of you has benefited from my patience?
- Which of you I've surprised with a decisive act?
- Which of you I consider a peer without quite saying so?

KNIGHT-ERRANT

You have left your liege's lands to prove your chivalric virtues through adventure. You answer to your honour code first, your liege second. When you act in a way that clearly demonstrates a chivalric virtue — courage, justice, mercy, loyalty — mark XP.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you I have treated with formal courtesy from the start?
- Which of you has tested my code and watched how I responded?
- Which of you thinks chivalry is something from stories?
- Which of you have I disappointed, and how do I make it right?

ELEVATED FROM BELOW

You were not born noble. Your knighthood was earned by deed. You know what the common folk actually face, and you hold your title with that knowledge. When you speak on behalf of the downtrodden to those with power, you may roll +CHA instead of +WIS for Parley.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you knows where I actually came from?
- Which of you respects me more for it?
- Which of you treats me as they would any noble?
- Which of you have I proved myself to, in a moment that counted?

THE KNIGHT

STARTING MOVES

HORSEMANSHIP

You fight as well mounted as on foot. When mounted, you gain +1 to attack rolls and +1 forward to Defy Danger involving riding or pursuit. Your warhorse is trained for combat.

MONSTER SLAYER

Choose one type of dangerous creature (undead, giant beasts, chaotic creatures, or a specific monster type). Against them, your attacks deal +1d4 damage. You may change your designated quarry between sessions.

STRENGTH OF WILL

When you face supernatural fear, beguiling magic, or coercion through intimidation, roll +CHA. On a 10+, you are unaffected. On a 7-9, you are shaken but act through it.

CHIVALRIC CODE

You are bound by code: honour your liege, defend the innocent, show mercy when it is earned, fight with courage. When you follow this code at genuine cost to yourself, mark XP. When you break it, your liege hears of it.

FORMAL CHALLENGE

When you formally challenge an enemy — by name and title, in clear view — they must respond or be shamed. If they accept, they focus on you alone until the challenge is resolved.

NOBLE BEARING

When you enter a formal or courtly setting and act according to your rank, you are treated with appropriate status. Doors open; seats are offered; questions are answered before they are asked.

ADVANCES

- Lance Charge: When you charge on horseback and land a blow with your lance, deal double damage and the target is knocked down.
- Fearless: You are immune to mundane fear and take +1 forward against supernatural fear.
- Liege's Favour: Your liege grants you a formal boon — a name, a resource, a contact, a safe house — of significant value.
- Knightly Reputation: Your name is known in the courts of Dolmenwood. Nobles recognise you; common folk know the heraldry.
- Rally: Once per combat, when you call out to your allies with authority, they all clear Fear and take +1 forward.
- Improved Stat: Increase one of your stats by +1, to a max of +2.
- Superior Stat (Requires: Improved Stat, at least one other advance): Increase one of your stats by +1, to a max of +3.

DRIVES

- Act with honour when dishonour would be easier and no one would know.
- Defend someone who had no right to expect a knight's protection.
- Prove your liege's name means something in a place that has forgotten it.
- Face something that required courage — real courage, not duty.

Age: young and already deep into subjects they shouldn't be | middle-aged with the look of someone who rarely sleeps | old, still sharp, not as careful as they once were

Eyes: always busy with a calculation | briefly startled when the world intrudes | bright with recognition when something interesting happens

Clothing: ritual robes with sigils stitched at the hem | scholar's coat covered in annotation | ordinary clothes with a spellbook always visible

Signature: a spellbook never left behind | a wand or staff carried like a tool | the habit of muttering working-through thoughts aloud

BACKGROUND

Pick one.

ROYAL INSTITUTE GRADUATE

You were trained at the Institute in Castle Brackenwold — the only officially sanctioned magical college in Dolmenwood. You know proper theory, institutional politics, and where the Guild's interests end and yours begin. When you consult your formal training on an arcane question, take +1 forward.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you has heard of the Royal Institute?
- Which of you is suspicious of my formal credentials?
- Which of you I've impressed more than the Institute prepared me to?
- Which of you has asked me something the curriculum didn't cover?

SELF-TAUGHT ECCENTRIC

You had no master and no curriculum. Your magic is strange, effective, and occasionally alarming to other practitioners. When you improvise a magical solution no trained magician would attempt, take +1 forward.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you was present for something I did that I still can't fully explain?
- Which of you thinks proper training would have made me dangerous in the wrong way?
- Which of you has caught me testing something on myself?
- Which of you trusts my methods despite themselves?

APPRENTICE WHO OUTLASTED THEIR MASTER

Your master died, vanished, or became impossible to apprentice under. You know their techniques better than anyone alive now, and you carry their unfinished work. When you work on research your master began, ask the GM one question they would have known. The GM answers honestly.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you knows what happened to my master?
- Which of you I've shown my master's work to?
- Which of you thinks I'm carrying something I should put down?
- Which of you has helped me find a piece my master was looking for?

DRUNE-ADJACENT SCHOLAR

You have studied stolen Drune spells — the Wood's hidden cult magic — without becoming one of them. It makes your range unusual. When you identify or interact with Drune magic, take +1 forward and ask the GM one question. The GM answers honestly.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you knows the risk I took learning what I know?
- Which of you is unsure where my research ends and heresy begins?
- Which of you have I helped with something no other magician could have?
- Which of you has warned me about the path I'm on?

THE MAGICIAN

STARTING MOVES

ARCANE MAGIC

You memorise spells from your spellbook each day and cast them as written. At Level 1, you may memorise one Rank 1 spell per day. Memorised spells are expended on casting. Your spellbook is your foundation — without it, you must improvise.

STARTING SPELL BOOK

You begin with one spellbook and the spells it contains, rolled or chosen with the GM. This book may be inherited, stolen, bought, or copied under a mentor's eye.

DETECT MAGIC

When you concentrate on a person, object, or location, you sense the presence and rough nature of magical effects. The GM tells you whether magic is present and what school it resembles.

MAGIC ITEMS

You can identify and use magic items restricted to arcane spell-casters — wands, scrolls, enchanted implements. Other classes cannot.

ESOTERIC LORE

When you Spout Lore about arcane magic, magical creatures, or the history of sorcery in Dolmenwood, take +1 forward. You have read more than is good for you.

METHODICAL RESEARCH

When you spend meaningful time studying a specific magical problem — at least a watch — ask the GM two questions about it. The GM answers both honestly.

ADVANCES

- New Spells: Add 1d4 new spells to your spellbook from research, trade, or discovery.
- Arcane Recovery: Once per day, recover one expended Rank 1 spell without rest.
- Wand Mastery: When you use a magic wand, treat its effects as if you were one Level higher.
- Staff Focus: Your staff counts as a magic weapon. You deal d6 damage with it instead of d4.
- Forbidden Spell: Learn one spell outside your normal school — stolen, bargained for, or reconstructed from ruins.
- Improved Stat: Increase one of your stats by +1, to a max of +2.
- Superior Stat (Requires: Improved Stat, at least one other advance): Increase one of your stats by +1, to a max of +3.

DRIVES

- Learn a spell no living magician still knows.
- Solve a magical problem by doing it correctly, not cleverly.
- Recover or complete a piece of research that would otherwise be lost.
- Resist trading something important for something merely interesting.

BACKGROUND

Pick one.

THIEVES' GUILD MEMBER

You operate under the auspices of Bagsley Corundum's guild, or you did until recently. You have contacts, drop points, and the knowledge of a professional. When you seek resources, fences, or safe houses through Guild channels, take +1 forward.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you knows the Guild — and how much of what they know is accurate?
- Which of you I trust with the fact that I still have obligations to them?
- Which of you have I recruited for something unofficial?
- Which of you I'm not sure the Guild knows I'm travelling with?

TOMB DELVER

You specialise in places with traps, locks, and things that haven't been disturbed in a long time. When you investigate an old, sealed, or constructed structure for hidden mechanisms, take +1 forward and the GM must tell you if anything dangerous has been triggered or disturbed recently.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you I've saved from a trap that would have killed them?
- Which of you came on a job with me before this?
- Which of you has something from a delve that I found first?
- Which of you trusts my read of an old building?

PICKPOCKET AND CHARMER

You work the crowds and the social spaces. You know how to take what you want off someone while they're smiling at you. When you use sleight of hand, misdirection, or social engineering to take something or move through a space unnoticed, take +1 forward.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you caught me once and chose to say nothing?
- Which of you I've taken something from that I've since given back?
- Which of you I genuinely like, and so I don't work them?
- Which of you I've covered for in a social situation?

DESPERATE NOBLE

You come from money — or you did. Debts, scandal, or simple failure brought you here. You understand how wealth works and how to move among those who have it. When you navigate noble or merchant society while concealing your current circumstances, roll +CHA instead of +DEX for Defy Danger.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you knows my real name?
- Which of you I've used my old connections for, at some cost to my dignity?
- Which of you has asked me why I went this way instead of another?
- Which of you I'm trying not to need?

STARTING MOVES

BACKSTAB

When you attack an enemy who is unaware of you or distracted, deal +1d6 damage. If you attack from hiding, you are not automatically revealed.

CLIMB

You can scale sheer surfaces, ropes, and rough stone with no roll under ordinary conditions. In extreme conditions (slippery, vertical, hostile), roll +DEX.

DISARM TRAPS

When you examine a mechanism you believe is trapped, roll +DEX. On a 10+, you disarm it cleanly. On a 7-9, you disarm it but choose one: it's noisy, it partially triggers, or you leave it half-armed.

PICK LOCKS

With thieves' tools and time, you can open most locks without a roll. In time pressure or without tools, roll +DEX.

STEALTH

When you move without being observed, take +1 forward. You can hide in shadows, reduce your noise to near-silence, and follow a target at distance without being noticed on a 10+.

DECIPHER SCRIPT

When you examine coded writing, arcane notation, or an unfamiliar language, roll +INT. On a 10+, you understand it. On a 7-9, you understand the gist and the GM tells you what you get wrong.

ADVANCES

- Second Strike: When you Backstab, you may immediately make a second attack if the first kills your target.
- Smooth Exit: When things go wrong, you can slip out of a situation — a building, a fight, a conversation — without a roll, once per scene.
- Contacts: You have established contacts in two locations in Dolmenwood — fences, safe houses, information brokers. They owe you something, or you owe them.
- Legerdemain: You can palm, swap, or produce small objects without anyone noticing, even under scrutiny.
- Forgery: Given an hour and reference material, you can produce a convincing copy of a document, signature, or official seal. The GM determines how good it needs to be to succeed.
- Improved Stat: Increase one of your stats by +1, to a max of +2.
- Superior Stat (Requires: Improved Stat, at least one other advance): Increase one of your stats by +1, to a max of +3.

DRIVES

- Take something from someone who deserved to lose it.
- Get into a place everyone said was impossible to enter.
- Pull off a job cleanly — no mess, no trail, no one knows it was you.
- Help someone who had no reason to expect help from your kind.
