NAME

Pick a name:

Court Names: Silvaine, Aldric, Meredith, Corslyn / Evrett, Beatrix, Tamsin, Rowan

Road Names: Pip, Wren, Gorse, Holly / Reed, Sparrow, Latch, Flint

Stage Names: Brightbow, Silvertongue, The Crow, Nightwatch / Lowbell, Ashwood, Trueblood, Rambler

LOOK

Pick one from each row:

Origin: trained at a noble court | self-taught on the road | apprentice of a wandering singer | inherited the craft from a family tradition

Build: light and quick | still and watchful, performing only when needed | expressive and vivid | unhurried, conserving everything for the right moment

Eyes: always reading the room | lit up when a good story starts | recording everything for later | kind to people, harder on ideas

Clothing: travelling performer's outfit, worn and charming | rich fabric gone slightly shabby | practical layers with a colorful detail | simple garb that somehow draws the eye

Signature: a stringed instrument, always in reach | the habit of humming while thinking | a notebook crammed with overheard dialogue and half-remembered songs | a long scarf or cloak used for emphasis

BACKGROUND

Pick one.

COURT PERFORMER

You know the great houses — their colors, their grudges, their vanities. You've performed for at least one of them. You know what they want to hear and what they pretend not to hear.

When you navigate noble politics, court etiquette, or a gathering of the highborn, take +1 forward.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you has seen me perform at a noble's table?
- Which of you knows which house I'm no longer welcome in?
- Which of you warned me before I said something dangerous?
- Which of you doesn't know about my history with the nobility?

FOLKLORE COLLECTOR

You travel Dolmenwood gathering old stories — the ones told around winter fires, the ones people stop telling when strangers are present. You have heard versions of stories that people thought were lost.

When you draw on folklore to understand a creature, place, or event, ask the GM one question. The GM answers honestly.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you told me a story I'd never heard before?
- Which of you thinks what I collect is more dangerous than I believe?
- Which of you has seen me recognize something in the real world from a story I knew?
- Which of you gave me the strangest piece of folklore you've heard?

FAIRY TALE SURVIVOR

Something happened to you in the Wood that most people only hear about in stories. You walked out of it. You don't always know why.

When you recognize that the current situation follows a fairy tale pattern, tell the GM what you think the pattern is. If you're right, take +1 forward and mark XP.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you knows what happened to me in the Wood?
- Which of you has seen me go very still when something feels familiar?
- Which of you thinks I'm not as recovered from it as I appear?
- Which of you would I tell the whole story to, if I ever did?

CAUTIONARY TALE

Your most famous performance caused a problem. You were there. You've been more careful since — or you're trying to be.

When you hold back rather than act impulsively, take +1 forward to the next thing you do instead.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you knows the story of what I did?
- Which of you has never asked, and I'm grateful for it?
- Which of you caught me almost doing the same thing again?
- Which of you am I most afraid to disappoint?

STARTING MOVES

COUNTER CHARM

When you resist fairy magic, enchantment, or supernatural compulsion, roll +CHA. On a 10+, you are unaffected and may act freely. On a 7-9, you resist for now — but the effect lingers, and the GM tells you what it will cost to stay free.

ENCHANTING PERFORMANCE

When you perform — music, story, or poetry — for an audience, roll +CHA. On a 10+, choose two: they are moved, they lower their guard, they remember something, they tell you something they wouldn't otherwise. On a 7-9, choose one.

FOLKLORE

You have extensive knowledge of the legends, creatures, and history of Dolmenwood. When you draw on that knowledge about a creature, place, faction, or event, ask the GM one honest question about it.

DECIPHER OLD SCRIPT

You can read archaic forms of Woldish, old liturgical texts, and runic inscriptions found in ruins and on standing stones. When you examine an inscription, the GM tells you what it says and may tell you more.

READ THE ROOM

When you carefully observe a social situation before acting, ask the GM one of: who holds the real power here? What does someone want that they haven't said? Where is the tension that could break this apart?

THE STORY CONTINUES

The first time each session that something goes badly and a companion is about to give up, you may offer a story that puts it in a different frame. They take +1 forward, and you mark XP.

ADVANCES

- Ballad of the Wood: Compose a song about a real event from the campaign. While that song is known, allies who hear it take +1 forward to acts that mirror its theme.
- Fairy Tongue: You have learned enough of the fairy language to speak basic pleasantries and identify glamours when you hear them.
- Known by Name: Choose a noble house or powerful faction in Dolmenwood — you are known there, positively. Use this when it matters.
- Disarming Charm: When you make a positive first impression on someone, they cannot bring themselves to harm you until you give them a reason.
- Living Archive: Once per session, recall a piece of folklore that directly applies to the current problem. The GM tells you one true thing you've remembered at the right moment.
- Improved Stat: Increase one of your stats by +1, to a max of +2.
- Superior Stat (Requires: Improved Stat, at least one other advance): Increase one of your stats by +1, to a max of +3.

DRIVES

- Learn a story that was thought lost forever.
- Perform in front of someone who has the power to change what happens next.
- Recognize a fairy tale pattern while it's happening — and change the ending.
- Tell a hard truth through a story when saying it directly would have failed.

THE CLERIC

You serve God with sword and prayer. The Church needs warriors willing to walk into the dark.

NAME

Pick a name:

From the Order: Edmund, Aldric, Margot, Sybil / Crestian, Aelwin, Fenwith, Dorith

From the South: Baric, Lucen, Sera, Maeve / Holt, Wendric, Aleth, Corvine

Earned in Service: Brother Stone, Sister Thorn, The Unbroken, Father Ash

LOOK

Pick one from each row:

Origin: raised in the seminary | converted in the field | trained by a wandering order | born to a devout family

Build: broad-shouldered and deliberate | lean and wary | scarred from battles fought in God's name | still and composed

Eyes: searching for sin | full of quiet certainty | haunted by what they've seen and still believe | steady as a lit candle

Clothing: church-issued plate, worn but maintained | campaign-battered armor with holy symbols etched in | heavy robes over chain | clean and precise regardless of the mud

Signature: a Chapes pendant of St Clewyd always at hand | knuckles rough from both prayer and fighting | a scar across the throat from something that almost worked | a field journal of sins witnessed and forgiven

Pick one.

SERVANT OF THE ORDER OF ST FAXIS

You answer directly to Bishop Sanguine's inquisitorial arm — rooting out occultism wherever you find it. You know the faces of the Hooded Men, or you're learning them.

When you act openly against agents of the Drune, the Cold Prince, or the Nag-Lord, take +1 forward.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you has seen me hesitate before something I was ordered to destroy?
- Which of you knows something about my mission that I haven't told my superiors?
- Which of you do I trust more than the Order — and why?
- Which of you was I sent to watch?

KEEPER OF A LOST SHRINE

A shrine in the deep Wood was in your care. Something took it from you — flood, fire, Drune, or something worse. You haven't stopped looking.

When you recover a relic, shrine, or sacred object for the Church, mark XP.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you has helped me search for what I lost?
- Which of you knows what happened at the shrine — even if you haven't said so?
- Which of you lost something they haven't recovered either?
- Which of you doubts I'll ever find it?

FALLEN FROM GRACE

You transgressed. You've done your penance, and you walk in Lawful service again — but you remember what the fall felt like.

When you confront another who stands at the edge of disgrace, take +1 forward to help or hinder them.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you knows what I did?
- Which of you has never judged me for it?
- Which of you is close to the same edge I once stood on?
- Which of you caught me doing something I promised I'd never do again?

FIELD CONSECRATED

You were never trained in a seminary. You were consecrated by a dying priest in a bog and told to carry on. You've been carrying on ever since.

When you consecrate a space — a makeshift altar, a dying man's chest, a fallen shrine — the GM gives you one true piece of information about what has happened here.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you was there when I was consecrated?
- Which of you thinks I'm not a real Cleric?
- Which of you has seen me perform a rite that shouldn't have worked — but did?
- Which of you have I buried?

STARTING MOVES

HOLY VOW

You are Lawful or Neutral. If you act against your vow or become Chaotic, you lose the ability to use Pray for Grace until you perform an act of atonement. The GM tells you what that requires.

PRAY FOR GRACE

When you pray in the name of a saint before taking action, roll +WIS. On a 10+, the GM gives you an honest answer to one question about the situation, and take +1 forward. On a 7-9, take +1 forward, but the GM asks something of you in return.

TURN THE UNHOLY

When you confront an undead creature, demon, or creature of Chaos with holy authority, roll +WIS. On a 10+, it flees, is destroyed, or cannot approach you. On a 7-9, it hesitates — you and your allies can act before it does.

HOLY WARRIOR

You are trained in arms and armor. When you fight in defense of the innocent or in direct service of the Church, take +1 forward.

SAINT'S MEMORY

You know the deeds, relics, and shrines of the saints of the Pluritine Church. When you identify a saint's relic or shrine, ask the GM one question about its history, power, or location. The GM answers honestly.

CARRY THE LIGHT

When an ally would break under fear, grief, or despair, you may give them your certainty instead. They take +1 forward. You mark XP.

ADVANCES

- Holy Order: Choose a patron saint. Once per session, invoke their specific power — described between you and the GM.
- Blessed Arms: Your weapon carries the saint's mark. It counts as holy against undead and creatures of Chaos.
- Exorcism: When you perform a rite of exorcism on a person or place, roll +WIS. On a 10+, the corruption is expelled. On a 7-9, it is weakened — but it remembers you now.
- Unwavering: You are immune to magical fear and compulsion that originates from Chaos or Fairy.
- Word of Judgement: Once per conflict, speak a holy condemnation. All enemies who hear it take disadvantage on their next action.
- Improved Stat: Increase one of your stats by +1, to a max of +2.
- Superior Stat (Requires: Improved Stat, at least one other advance): Increase one of your stats by +1, to a max of +3.

DRIVES

- Recover a lost shrine and return it to the Church.
- Stand between an innocent and something that would corrupt them.
- Confront a member of the Drune or the Nag-Lord's court and prevail.
- Act from genuine faith, not duty, at a moment when it costs you something.

THE FRIAR

You carry no weapon. Only faith, two good hands, and a knowledge of what grows in the deep Wood.

Homebrew World
Dolmenwood

NAME

Pick a name:

Church Names: Brother Ancel, Sister Maren, Brother Godwin, Sister Petry

Given Names: Wulfric, Elsa, Torin, Sanna / Addo, Mira, Cob, Fenn

Road Names: Grey, Mudfoot, Tallow, Saltmarsh / Slow Hand, Thornberry, Lightpurse

LOOK

Pick one from each row:

Origin: seminary trained but went wandering | self-ordained after a divine experience | travelling since before taking formal vows | converted late, still learning the prayers

Build: wiry and weathered from the road | soft-spoken and slight | broad and calm, moves slowly on purpose | slight with quick hands for tending wounds

Eyes: open and inviting confession | sad in a way they don't talk about | looking for signs of God in everything | steady in a crisis

Clothing: plain dark robes, worn and often muddy | rough spun habit with a saint's pendant | layered travelling clothes with a wooden prayer token | simple wool, always smelling faintly of herbs

Signature: a large pack of herbs and remedies | the habit of asking how people are and meaning it | a small carved saint's figure worn smooth from handling | always knowing where the nearest source of water is

BACKGROUND

Pick one.

WANDERING PREACHER

You travel the Wood spreading the word of God to those in isolated hamlets and lonely crossroads. You've been welcomed and turned away, sometimes at the same door.

When you tend to people of little means — farmers, woodcutters, the isolated — and ask nothing in return, mark XP.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you has seen me refused at a village gate?
- Which of you followed me away from a settlement that needed something I couldn't give?
- Which of you has listened to me preach, even once?
- Which of you thinks the Church I serve is not what I believe it to be?

HERBALIST OF THE DEEP WOOD

You learned what grows in Dolmenwood — the healing fungi, the strange mosses, the herbs that cure and the ones that kill if used wrong. Some of your knowledge came from sources the Church would not approve.

When you forage in the Wood, roll +WIS. On a 10+, you find what you're looking for and something useful you weren't. On a 7-9, you find what you need, but it takes time or takes you somewhere you'd rather not have gone.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you has benefited from my knowledge of what grows here?
- Which of you has seen the stranger parts of my collection?
- Which of you knows I sometimes learn from the witches, even if I'd never say so?
- Which of you has watched me hesitate before using something I knew would work?

SHRINE PILGRIM

You walk from shrine to shrine throughout the Wood — some lost, some found, some things others would not call shrines at all. You collect prayers like other people collect coins.

When you pray at a shrine — even a ruined or informal one — the GM gives you one true piece of information about the surrounding area.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you has walked beside me on a pilgrimage leg?
- Which of you found a shrine and told me about it before telling anyone else?
- Which of you thinks my pilgrimage is an excuse to go somewhere?
- Which of you has sat quietly while I prayed, without asking why?

PENITENT

You did something. The Church knows what it was. You are walking your penance out here in the Wood, doing good wherever you can, in hope that one day the debt is paid.

When you perform an act of genuine selfless aid at personal cost, mark XP.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you knows what I did?
- Which of you has never once brought it up?
- Which of you do I suspect is also doing penance for something?
- Which of you have I helped enough that I think it's starting to matter?

THE FRIAR

STARTING MOVES

HEALER'S HANDS

When you tend to an injured person with herbs, prayer, or care, roll +WIS. On a 10+, they recover as much as they safely can and take +1 forward. On a 7-9, they recover, but the healing costs you something — supplies, time, or a price the GM names.

HERBAL KNOWLEDGE

You know what grows in Dolmenwood. When you forage for herbs or fungi, you always find something useful. When you identify a plant or fungus, ask the GM one question about its properties. The GM answers honestly.

MINOR HOLY MAGIC

Once per day, you may call on a saint's blessing. Describe the need and the saint. Roll +WIS. On a 10+, the effect happens cleanly. On a 7-9, it happens, but with a complication the GM names.

TURN THE UNHOLY

When you confront an undead creature or spirit with prayer and conviction, roll +WIS. On a 10+, it cannot approach you and retreats. On a 7-9, it hesitates long enough for you to act.

GOSPEL ROAD

When you speak honestly with someone in need — not preaching, just speaking — roll +CHA. On a 10+, they open up, and you may ask the GM one question about what they know or carry. On a 7-9, they soften, but there's still something they won't tell you.

TRUSTED PRESENCE

People tell you things. Common folk, frightened farmers, even folk who distrust the Church — they find you easier to speak to than most. When you listen without judgment, mark XP.

ADVANCES

- Saint's Blessing: Choose a patron saint. Learn one powerful prayer specific to their domain — describe it with the GM.
- Forest Medicine: When you treat wounds in the field using found materials, the result is as effective as any trained surgeon.
- Consecrate: You can consecrate a makeshift shrine in any location. While within its bounds, allies cannot be targeted by the undead.
- The Long Road: You are never lost in the Wood. You always know the way to the nearest settlement.
- Unarmed and Unbothered: You can never be the first one attacked in an encounter — enemies see no threat in you, until you act.
- Improved Stat: Increase one of your stats by +1, to a max of +2.
- Superior Stat (Requires: Improved Stat, at least one other advance): Increase one of your stats by +1, to a max of +3.

DRIVES

- Heal someone who didn't believe they could be helped.
- Find a lost shrine and restore it to use.
- Give something you need to someone who needs it more.
- Act from compassion rather than duty, at a moment when the difference matters.

THE HUNTER

You know this Wood. You know what moves through it. You know what has gone in and not come back.

Homebrew World
Dolmenwood

NAME

Pick a name:

Common Names: Aldric, Wulfric, Maren, Sanna / Bram, Cob, Elsie, Holt

Forest Names: Bracken, Ash, Thorn, Rowan / Grey, Fen, Birch, Silvan

Earned Names: Longsight, Quietfoot, Ironbow, Trackless / Mudwalker, Stillhand, Coldsnap, Duskwarden

LOOK

Pick one from each row:

Origin: raised on the wood's edge by a hunter family | trained as a bounty hunter for the noble houses | learned alone, through loss | former soldier who chose the trees over the road

Build: lean and patient | wiry and low to the ground | still until something moves, then very fast | deliberate in everything

Eyes: always checking the distance | reading terrain, not faces | scanning for what shouldn't be there | calm in a way that comes from having been afraid many times

Clothing: practical wood-wear, earth-toned and worn quiet | forest-weathered layers with nothing that catches | hunting leathers marked by what you've tracked | a mix of function and personal history — trophies, tokens, repairs

Signature: an animal companion always nearby | the habit of crouching to read sign where others just walk past | a longbow or crossbow maintained to exactness | a quiver with notches cut for each significant hunt

BACKGROUND

Pick one.

TRACKER OF CROOKHORNS

You know the Nag-Lord's corrupted breggles better than most — their tracks, their patterns, their corrupted rage. You've been hunting them in the northern reaches before anyone else thought to worry.

When you track or hunt crookhorns or creatures bearing the Nag-Lord's corruption, take +1 forward.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you has been in the northern Wood with me?
- Which of you doesn't understand yet how bad it's getting up there?
- Which of you has lost someone to what I've been hunting?
- Which of you trusts my read on what's moving through this area?

BOUNTY HUNTER OF THE NOBLE HOUSES

You work contracts — monsters, criminals, missing persons, things lords want found or stopped. You know the great houses, their territories, and what they pay for.

When you take a contract from a noble house and pursue it, take +1 forward to all moves made in direct service of that contract.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you came with me on a previous contract?
- Which of you knows which house has a standing offer on something I'm not ready to collect?
- Which of you is the reason I turned down a contract once?
- Which of you has been a target — and doesn't know I was the one asked?

ANIMAL BONDED

Your companion found you, not the other way around. It was injured, or lost, or old enough to choose. You've been together long enough that the bond is deep and wordless.

When your companion acts on your behalf without instruction, the GM tells you what it has sensed that you haven't.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you has seen my companion do something that made you reconsider what animals understand?
- Which of you knows my companion's name?
- Which of you has my companion warmed to, without my prompting?
- Which of you has my companion made clear they distrust — and have they been right?

FOREST RECLUSE RETURNING

You lived alone in the deep Wood for a long time. You know things about it that people who live near it don't. You've come back out for a reason, and the reason matters to you.

When you draw on knowledge gained from solitary time in the deep Wood, ask the GM one question about the terrain, creatures, or hidden things in the area. The GM answers honestly.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you found me in the Wood, or was there when I came back out?
- Which of you knows what sent me into the forest in the first place?
- Which of you has seen me look at something out there like it's not quite right — and say nothing?
- Which of you do I stay for?

THE HUNTER

Skrót zasad i opcji postaci do gry przy stole.

STARTING MOVES

ANIMAL COMPANION

You have a loyal animal companion — a large dog, a hawk, a wildcat, a trained crow, or something else agreed with the GM. Name it and describe it. When you act in concert with your companion, take +1 forward. If your companion is injured, you may not take +1 from any move until they are healed. If your companion dies, mark a Debility and do not name a new one until you've grieved.

TRACK

When you follow a trail — creature, person, or event — roll +WIS. On a 10+, you follow it cleanly and learn something about what made it. On a 7-9, you follow it, but the trail is harder to read or the quarry knows it's being followed.

ALERTNESS

You are never surprised. When the GM would call for a check against ambush or sudden threat, you may act first.

MARKSMAN

When you make a ranged attack from a position of advantage or after taking a moment to aim, take +1 forward.

WAYFINDING

You cannot be lost in the Wood. When the party is in danger of losing their way, you find the path. When entering a new area, ask the GM one of: What is the most significant danger here? What passes through this area regularly? Where would someone go to not be found?

PATIENT HUNTER

When you spend time quietly observing a creature, a location, or a person before acting, ask the GM one question: what is their weakness, routine, or vulnerability? The GM answers honestly.

ADVANCES

- Bonded Senses: Your companion can relay what it has sensed. Once per session, ask the GM one question about what your companion has observed in your absence.
- Lethal Shot: When you make a ranged attack from concealment against a target that doesn't know you're there, your damage ignores armor.
- Wilderness Medicine: When you treat wounds using the Wood's natural resources, the effect is equivalent to professional medical treatment.
- Monster Lore: Choose a type of creature common to Dolmenwood — crookhorns, undead, fairy creatures, fungi-things. You have expertise on this type. When you act against them, take +1 forward.
- Vanishing Act: You can disappear into the Wood at will. When pursued, roll +WIS. On a 10+, pursuers lose you completely. On a 7-9, you lose them temporarily — they may pick up the trail again.
- Improved Stat: Increase one of your stats by +1, to a max of +2.
- Superior Stat (Requires: Improved Stat, at least one other advance): Increase one of your stats by +1, to a max of +3.

DRIVES

- Hunt something no one else has been able to track down.
- Protect the deep Wood from something that doesn't belong in it.
- Understand what your companion knows that you don't.
- Go somewhere in the Wood that should be avoided — and come back.

LOOK

Pick one from each row:

Origin: born to the nobility | elevated from common blood by deeds | a younger child who needed their own path | sworn in by a dying lord who had no other choice

Build: armored, deliberate, and imposing | tall and certain | compact and efficient | scarred in ways that suggest surviving a great deal

Eyes: watching for threats to what they protect | weighing honor in every exchange | direct and demanding | quieter than the armor suggests

Clothing: plate armor, heavy and well-maintained | campaign-worn armor with a lord's colors | chainmail bearing a noble house's symbol | armor kept immaculate even in the field

Signature: a lance or two-handed blade always within reach | the habit of standing between others and a door | a lord's pendant worn openly | the formal courtesy of someone who learned it by necessity

BACKGROUND

SWORN TO HOUSE HARROWMOOR

Lady Harrowmoor's house is steadfast, militant, and facing the encroachment of the Nag-Lord's crookhorns from the north. You serve her with armor and discipline.

When you act directly in defense of House Harrowmoor's lands or people, take +1 forward.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you knows the Harrowmoor lands well enough to know what's at stake?
- Which of you has fought beside me in the northern Wood?
- Which of you thinks the crookhorn threat is worse than my liege believes?
- Which of you has seen me receive orders I disagree with and follow them anyway?

SWORN TO HOUSE GUILLEFER

The Guillefer house is dreamy and aloof, rotating lordship among family members. You serve a house that sometimes forgets you exist — which gives you unusual latitude.

When you act without explicit instructions and it succeeds, mark XP.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you has seen me act without orders — and gotten away with it?
- Which of you knows which Guillefer I'm currently sworn to?
- Which of you do I trust more than my current lord?
- Which of you was there when I last heard from my liege, and knows how long ago that was?

KNIGHT ERRANT

You serve no specific house right now. You carry your code without a lord — wandering, doing what a knight does, waiting for a worthy cause or a worthy master.

When you uphold your code in a situation where no one required you to, take +1 forward and mark XP.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you knows why I no longer serve my former liege?
- Which of you has seen me refuse a lord's offer of service?
- Which of you do I actually serve, even if neither of us has named it?
- Which of you has tested my code and watched me hold it?

DISGRACED AND RETURNING

Your knighthood was stripped. You know why. You are earning it back — through deeds or through finding what went wrong and fixing it.

When you act in a way that restores your honor in the eyes of someone who witnessed your disgrace, mark XP.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you knows what I did?
- Which of you has never once used it against me?
- Which of you has seen me be better than the story of my failure?
- Which of you do I most want to witness when I reclaim what I lost?

STARTING MOVES

SWORN VASSAL

Name your liege — a noble house, a lord, or a sworn cause. When you act in direct service of your liege's interests, take +1 forward. If you ever betray your liege, lose this move until you perform an act of redemption in their name.

ARMORED AND READY

You are trained in all arms and heavy armor. When you stand your ground in combat while protecting another, you cannot be moved or broken unless overwhelmed by superior numbers.

MONSTER SLAYER

When you face a creature of Chaos, an undead, or a supernatural predator, take +1 forward on the first roll you make against it.

STRENGTH OF WILL

When you resist fear, supernatural compulsion, or a breaking of your nerve, roll +STR. On a 10+, you hold firm and take +1 forward. On a 7-9, you hold, but it costs you — mark it.

CHIVALRIC CODE

You do not use missile weapons. You do not strike the unarmed or surrendering. You name yourself before combat. When you uphold your code and it would have been easier not to, mark XP.

MOUNTED

You have a horse (or can acquire one quickly). When you fight mounted, your damage die increases by one step. Your horse is not expendable.

ADVANCES

- Renowned: Choose a noble house or powerful faction — you are known by name there as someone of worth.
- Shield of the Innocent: When you step between an innocent and harm, you take no damage from the first blow.
- Oath of the House: Your liege grants you a specific title and territory. Name it — you have responsibilities and resources there.
- Warlord's Voice: When you command allies in battle, they take +1 forward on their next action.
- Unbroken: Once per session, when you would fall, you don't. You are at 1 HP and conscious.
- Improved Stat: Increase one of your stats by +1, to a max of +2.
- Superior Stat (Requires: Improved Stat, at least one other advance): Increase one of your stats by +1, to a max of +3.

DRIVES

- Fulfill a duty to your liege at genuine cost to yourself.
- Defeat a creature of Chaos in direct combat.
- Act with honor in a situation that would have let you look away.
- Find out what it means to be a knight when no one is watching.

Origin: trained by a master before they disappeared | self-taught from stolen texts | initiated into a secret tradition now dead | found a spell book young and never looked up

Build: thin and precise | hunched over notes | still and calculating | always moving, always reaching for something

Eyes: cataloguing everything | bright when something rare appears | distant, already thinking three steps ahead | cautious in a way that suggests past catastrophe

Clothing: ink-stained robes over practical layers | traveling scholar's coat with arcane notation in the lining | plain garb that hides several concealed pockets | weather-worn academic dress

Signature: a spell book always in reach | fingers that move slightly when thinking | a smell of ozone and old parchment | the habit of pausing before speaking to check if someone is listening

Pick one.

DRUNE-ADJACENT

You've been close enough to the Hooded Men to learn something. Whether you stole it, traded for it, or ran from them afterward is another matter.

When you use knowledge you acquired from or about the Drune, take +1 forward and tell the GM what it cost you to learn it.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you knows what I took from the Drune?
- Which of you helped me escape after?
- Which of you thinks I should have left well enough alone?
- Which of you doesn't know about this — and I'd like to keep it that way?

APPRENTICE OF A DEAD MASTER

Your mentor died or disappeared before finishing your education. Their methods live in your hands. Their secrets are still buried somewhere.

When you use a technique or approach your master taught you, describe it aloud and take +1 forward.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you knew my master — or knew of them?
- Which of you was there when I found out they were gone?
- Which of you has seen me do something I could only have learned from someone dangerous?
- Which of you am I looking for something my master left behind?

COLLECTOR OF FORBIDDEN BOOKS

You have acquired texts that the Church burns and the Drune hoard. You are very careful about who knows this.

When you consult your collection and ask the GM about something arcane, occult, or historical, the GM answers honestly.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you has seen what I keep in my pack?
- Which of you borrowed something from my collection and hasn't returned it?
- Which of you would report me to the Church if they knew what I had?
- Which of you once asked me to burn a specific book — and I didn't?

LEY LINE READER

You can feel the Wood's arcane currents — the ley lines, the stones, the places where the world is thinner than it should be. The Drune would kill for your sensitivity. You're hoping they don't find out.

When you enter a new area, you may ask the GM if there is arcane significance here — a ley line, a standing stone, a fairy door, a place of power. The GM answers honestly.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you noticed I went very still when we crossed into this area?
- Which of you has seen me touch a standing stone and pull my hand back quickly?
- Which of you knows I can sense the Drune's workings — and hasn't told anyone?
- Which of you followed me when I went off alone to investigate something?

STARTING MOVES

CAST A SPELL

When you cast a spell you have prepared and visualized, roll +INT. On a 10+, it works as intended. On a 7-9, it works, but choose one: it takes longer than expected | it draws unwanted attention | it costs something small but real.

SECRET LORE

When you examine something arcane — a spell, an object, a magical effect, a ritual space — ask the GM one question about it. The GM answers honestly.

DETECT MAGIC

You can always sense the presence of active magic nearby. When you focus deliberately, the GM tells you the nature of the magic and its source.

HOARD OF KNOWLEDGE

Name a field of arcane study (demonology, fairy runes, ley line theory, crystalmancy, etc.) — you have studied it. Once per subject, ask the GM one question about how your knowledge applies to the current situation. The GM answers honestly.

ELDRITCH ITEMS

You know how to identify and use arcane items. When you attempt to use a magic item of unknown function, roll +INT instead of rolling blind.

THE PRICE OF POWER

When something goes badly wrong with your magic, mark XP.

ADVANCES

- New Spell: Learn one new prepared spell of your description — agree the scope with the GM.
- Ley Line Tap: When near a standing stone or ley line nexus, cast one spell without cost.
- Drune Fragment: You have acquired a piece of Drune knowledge. It works. It may also be noticed.
- Analytical Mind: When you observe a magical effect or creature ability, you may ask the GM its weakness. The GM answers honestly.
- Arcane Reserves: Once per session, cast a spell that would normally exhaust you without suffering that cost.
- Improved Stat: Increase one of your stats by +1, to a max of +2.
- Superior Stat (Requires: Improved Stat, at least one other advance): Increase one of your stats by +1, to a max of +3.

DRIVES

- Acquire a spell or text that no one else has.
- Learn something the Drune have hidden from everyone.
- Cast something you've never tried before, in full knowledge of the risk.
- Find what your master left unfinished — and finish it.

BACKGROUND

Pick one.

TOMB ROBBER OF THE DEEP WOOD

You make your living from what the dead left behind — in the barrow mounds, the crumbling fairy ruins, the abandoned delvings no one else is willing to enter. You've learned a great deal about what's down there.

When you enter a ruin, tomb, or abandoned structure, ask the GM one of: What is the real danger here? What was this place originally? Where is the most valuable thing likely to be?

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you has been inside a ruin with me before?
- Which of you once talked me out of opening something I shouldn't have?
- Which of you knows how I got this specific scar?
- Which of you have I given a share to when I didn't have to?

DREG OPERATIVE

You came up in Dreg — the port town, the river trade, Madame Shantywood's shadow economy. You know how the underside of things works and who runs what.

When you deal with criminal elements, river traders, smugglers, or the unofficial economy of Dolmenwood, take +1 forward.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you knows the name Madame Shantywood?
- Which of you got me out of Dreg the last time things went wrong there?
- Which of you has done work for the same people I have?
- Which of you doesn't know what I am — and I'd like to keep it that way?

CON ARTIST AND CHARLATAN

You've sold false relics to devout believers, fake maps to desperate explorers, and invented entire identities for single evenings. It's behind you. Mostly.

When you maintain a false identity or deception for longer than an hour without slipping, mark XP.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you have I deceived in the past?
- Which of you knows my real name?
- Which of you caught me in a lie and said nothing?
- Which of you do I make no effort to deceive?

GUILD DROPOUT

You were trained by a guild — how to move, how to case, how to disappear. Then something happened and you're on your own. The guild may or may not be looking for you.

When you use techniques clearly learned from formal training, take +1 forward and tell the GM what it reveals about your past.

When you introduce yourself to the other PCs, ask one or more of the following:

- Which of you knows I was trained by a guild?
- Which of you doesn't know — and I've been actively hiding it?
- Which of you was there when I separated from them?
- Which of you knows whether they're still looking for me?

STARTING MOVES

BACKSTAB

When you strike from hiding or when your target doesn't know they're in danger, roll +DEX. On a 10+, you deal your damage and choose one: you remain hidden | you create an opening for an ally | they cannot raise an alarm. On a 7-9, you deal your damage, but you're exposed.

SLIP THE LOCK

When you pick a lock, disarm a trap, or bypass a physical barrier, roll +DEX. On a 10+, you handle it cleanly and quickly. On a 7-9, you get it done, but choose one: it takes longer than expected | something is triggered that wasn't visible | you leave evidence behind.

SHADOW MOVEMENT

When you move unseen through an area, roll +DEX. On a 10+, you pass without trace. On a 7-9, you get through, but someone almost noticed, or you had to leave something behind to do it.

DECIPHER SCRIPT

You can read codes, ciphers, thieves' marks, and old documents. When you examine a written text, you can usually extract the meaning — and what it's hiding.

SILVER TONGUE

When you lie, misdirect, or fast-talk someone who has no reason to distrust you, roll +CHA. On a 10+, they believe you or do what you suggest. On a 7-9, they mostly believe you, but ask one question you must answer.

ALWAYS WATCHING

When you enter a new space, you always know the exits, the sightlines, and — with a moment of quiet attention — the most likely hiding places for both people and things.

ADVANCES

- Poison Knowledge: You know the common toxins available in Dolmenwood, how to acquire them, and how to apply them without being noticed.
- Second Identity: You have a complete false identity — a name, a story, and a contact who can confirm it. It holds until you do something that breaks it.
- Fence: You know a buyer for almost anything in Dolmenwood. When you have something to sell, you can find a buyer and get a fair price.
- Vanish: Once per scene, you may disappear from a situation — not magically, but thoroughly. You are simply gone before anyone can stop you.
- Read the Hidden: When you observe a person carefully, ask the GM what they're hiding and what they most want. The GM answers honestly.
- Improved Stat: Increase one of your stats by +1, to a max of +2.
- Superior Stat (Requires: Improved Stat, at least one other advance): Increase one of your stats by +1, to a max of +3.

DRIVES

- Take something from someone who doesn't deserve to have it.
- Find what's buried in a ruin everyone else passed by.
- Get out of a situation that should have been inescapable.
- Be trusted by someone who has good reason not to trust you.

Optional Moves — Dolmenwood

Jednostronicowa karta ruchów opcjonalnych do settingu.

STANDING STONE

When you lay hands on a standing stone and open yourself to what moves through it, roll +WIS. On a 10+, ask the GM two questions from the list below and receive honest answers. On a 7-9, ask one — but something in the stone takes an interest in you.

- What has passed through this area recently that I should know about?
- What faction's power runs strongest through this stone?
- What is hidden near this location?
- What price was paid to raise this stone?

WHAT THE WOOD REMEMBERS

When you rest overnight in the deep Wood without shelter or fire, roll +WIS. On a 10+, you receive a true vision — the GM tells you something real about the Wood or the forces moving through it. On a 7-9, you receive a vision, but it is partial or alarming. Either way, mark XP.

AGAINST THE HOODED MEN

When you act directly against the Drune — opposing their plans, interfering with their ley work, stealing their knowledge — roll +INT. On a 10+, you succeed and remain unidentified. On a 7-9, you succeed, but the Drune now know someone interfered. They will find out who.

FAIRY ROAD

When you step onto a fairy road in full knowledge of what it is, roll +CHA. On a 10+, it carries you where you intend without incident. On a 7-9, it carries you where you need to go, but not where you planned — and something on the road saw you travel it.

TABLE 1: WHAT WE DISCOVER

We discover

01	a barrow mound freshly broken open from the inside
02	a standing stone that has been deliberately defaced — the runes scratched out
03	a hamlet where all the dogs have gone silent and won't look at the Wood
04	a fairy door, still faintly warm, wedged open with something that doesn't belong here
05	a Drune lodge entrance we weren't supposed to find
06	the ruins of a shrine that was torn down recently — within the week
07	a crookhorn encampment further south than any have been seen before
08	an abandoned cart carrying sealed Church relics with no explanation attached
09	a stretch of Wood where the trees are dying in a perfect circle
10	the journal of a knight who went missing three months ago, found in a ditch
11	a mossling alone in a fungal glade, surrounded by something it cannot name
12	a fairy road that wasn't on any map we've seen, running straight into the Nagwood
13	a farmstead where the family has vanished mid-meal
14	a Drune standing stone we've been circling without realizing it for an hour
15	a wandering friar who won't stop and won't say what they're running from
16	a freshly dug pit at the base of a Summerstone — precise, ritual, unexplained
17	the severed horns of a longhorn noble, left on a road marker with no message
18	a woodgrue alone and sober, which has never happened before
19	the wreckage of a cart — Church markings, Drune symbols scratched over them
20	a grove where every plant is in full bloom in the dead of winter

TABLE 2: WHERE IT IS

which lies

01	at the edge of the Nagwood, past the last breggle village
02	in a fog-choked bog that swallows sound
03	along a fairy road that branches off the Kings' Highway at midnight
04	at the foot of a standing stone the Drune are known to watch
05	between two noble houses' territories — in the strip no one officially claims
06	in a valley the local maps note only as "do not linger"
07	deep in the fungal forest, where the light goes wrong after noon
08	at the base of the hills below the ruined Abbey of St Clewyd
09	along the River Shub, where the water smells of something other than water
10	in a clearing that doesn't appear in the trees on any side — you just walk into it
11	on the border of a longhorn noble's land, where trespassing has consequences
12	through the gap in a stone wall that has no other stone wall near it
13	in a dell where the fairy music is audible just at the edge of hearing
14	at the crossroads outside Lankshorn, beneath the hanging sign
15	under the roots of a tree that should not be that old
16	past the Summerstone — in the area the ward keeps warm even in winter
17	in a cave system the locals call by a name they won't explain
18	in a forest where the path behind you looks different than when you entered
19	in the burnt shell of a building that the locals won't name
20	at a site where two ley lines cross — which the Drune will want back

TABLE 3: WHAT IT LEADS TO

and it leads us to

01	the Cold Prince's agents, working quietly within the Ring of Chell
02	the Drune Elder Phanatarch's interest in something they cannot yet identify
03	a noble house in crisis — from outside or from within
04	a hidden witch's meeting place beneath an ordinary-looking hill
05	a Summerstone that is failing — slower, colder, uncertain
06	a Church relic that the Church believed lost and that several parties want
07	the Nag-Lord's crookhorns preparing something that isn't a raid
08	a creature older than any faction currently claiming Dolmenwood
09	a fairy noble whose attention is now on the party — for reasons unstated
10	a lord who needs something done that they cannot ask their knights to do
11	a friar who knows where a lost shrine is — and knows why it was lost
12	a ruin that is not as abandoned as it appeared from the outside
13	a breggle family caught between the longhorn nobility and something worse
14	a woodgrue moot about to go catastrophically wrong
15	a grimalkin who has seen something in the Wood and will trade the information
16	a Drune seeking something they've lost — and willing to deal to recover it
17	the Church's Order of St Faxis operating in a way their Bishop didn't authorize
18	a merchant trafficking in something the party will not be able to ignore
19	a fairy door that now opens in the wrong direction
20	the dead — risen, organized, and going somewhere

TABLE 4: WHAT WE'RE ASKED TO DO

We are here to

01	recover a Church relic before the Drune reach it
02	find out what happened to a knight who stopped reporting
03	drive the crookhorn advance back from a village that hasn't asked for help yet
04	carry a message that should not be written down to someone who cannot be named
05	find a witch the Church is hunting — before the Order of St Faxis does
06	discover why a Summerstone has gone cold
07	stop a Drune ritual that will close off a ley line the area depends on
08	escort someone through the Wood who cannot travel without protection
09	retrieve something from a barrow mound before the next new moon
10	find a missing child who walked into the Wood three days ago
11	identify who defaced the standing stone and what they were trying to prevent
12	negotiate between two noble houses before one of them does something irreversible
13	investigate why the Church has sealed off a section of forest and refuses to explain
14	find and close the fairy door before something comes through it that shouldn't
15	recover evidence that a specific noble is in contact with the Cold Prince
16	bring a rogue friar back to the Church — or find out why they left
17	track something across the Wood that moves faster than it should
18	discover what is organizing the undead in this region and stop it
19	take something from the Drune that doesn't belong to them — without them knowing
20	survive three days in the deep Nagwood and come back with a report

TABLE 5: WHAT STANDS IN THE WAY

guarded by

01	a crookhorn warband led by a breggle who hasn't fully turned — yet
02	a Drune Audrune who controls the ley line this path runs along
03	a Church inquisitor who believes the party is what they're looking for
04	a grimalkin in wilder form that has claimed this space as territory
05	a fairy trap set into the road that activates when you walk past without the right word
06	a woodgrue band hired to make noise while something else moves quietly
07	an undead knight still in service to a lord who died a century ago
08	a bog creature that has been fed by the Nag-Lord's corruption
09	a cult of mortals serving the Cold Prince in exchange for promised protection
10	a mossling elder who will not let anyone through without an answer to their question
11	a fallen shrine whose protections have inverted and now harm rather than help
12	a Drune who has come to observe and will not permit themselves to be seen
13	a wood that has learned to misdirect and will repeat the path indefinitely
14	a fairy noble's wrath — something was done here they have not forgiven
15	a witch who is not an enemy but cannot let this go forward unexamined
16	the Order of St Faxis, investigating the same thing with different intentions
17	a creature that has taken a form it has no right to wear
18	a noble's guard with orders that make them an obstacle regardless of who's asking
19	a bridge over the River Shub that something lives under — attentive, hungry, old
20	a silence — nothing moves, nothing sounds, and the air is wrong in a way no one can place

TABLE 6: WHAT WE FACE AT THE END

and in the end we face

01	the Elder Phanatarch of the Drune, or their chosen representative — who knew we were coming
02	an agent of the Cold Prince in a form that was not expected
03	Atanuwë's corruption given shape — not a crookhorn but something worse
04	a noble lord who has made a bargain with something they don't understand yet
05	a Church official whose righteousness has curdled into something that serves no one
06	a fairy noble whose interest in the party is neither hostile nor safe
07	the thing the barrow mound was built to contain — which has been getting out slowly
08	a witch whose Gwyrigon has asked something of her she cannot refuse
09	a Drune ritual in progress that cannot simply be interrupted without consequence
10	a knight who chose disgrace over obedience — and found something worth choosing instead
11	a creature from Fairy that has been watching the party since before they noticed the problem
12	a lord whose legitimate claim and corrupted choices are now equally real
13	the Cold Prince's frost — not his agents, but his actual power bleeding through a failing ward
14	a man or woman who knows exactly who the party is and what they will do next
15	the Nag-Lord's court, glimpsed — not in battle, but in a way that means it knows about them
16	something the Church buried under a name they hoped no one would look up
17	a grimalkin who has been five steps ahead of the party since the beginning
18	a ruin that is not a ruin — something lives in it now that has learned to look like architecture
19	a human who serves no faction and wants something simple — which makes them the most dangerous thing here
20	the dead — one of them, specific, known — and what they're trying to finish
